Summary

This report is an overview of the activities of seventeen county Water Conservancy Boards (boards) within Washington State during the two-year period November 1, 2012 through October 31, 2014. For an immediate review, refer to the 2013-2014 Combined Map and the 2013-2014 Spreadsheet Tally.

Program Background

In an effort to alleviate the backlog of water right change applications on file with the Department of Ecology (Ecology), the 1997 Legislature authorized the creation of volunteer water conservancy boards in each county that chose to form a board. The boards process water right change applications only. They do not handle requests for new water rights and lack authority to process applications involving tribal lands.

There are now 17 county-initiated boards, 15 in eastern Washington and 2 west of the Cascades. At the peak in 2002, there were 21 boards established statewide. In 2014, Island County was the most recent government to dissolve their board due to inactivity.

The volunteer boards perform a valuable service to Washington citizens and businesses by reducing the time between filing and receiving a decision on water right change applications. The boards provide direct assistance to the potential applicants in their jurisdictions, and enable a more timely review of viable applications. The thorough review and vetting by boards in turn saves Ecology staff resources.

Each board is a separate, independently funded unit of local government, as provided in RCW 90.80.060 (2), and sets its application fee internally. The applicant pays a processing fee if the water right change application is accepted by the board, and also pays the cost of publishing public notice in a local newspaper. Although board members volunteer their time, typical board expenses include travel costs for training, field exams, and general office expenses. The boards are required to submit annual expense reports to the State Auditor's Office, and submit to audits when requested by that office.

Annual reports are required to be submitted to Ecology, and are the basis of this report. See Appendix B for all board reports for this 2012-2014 reporting cycle. You may find more information on Washington water conservancy boards and links to previous biennial reports at: http://www.ecy.wa.gov/programs/wr/conservancy_boards/cb-home.html.

Overview of Board Actions

Each of the 17 Washington water conservancy boards submitted annual reports for both years of the two-year period covered by this report. Graphic representations of the data are found in three maps in Appendix A, which also contains a tabulation of data by county (Table 1), and tabulations of data by Ecology region (Tables 2, 3, and 4). Highlights and comparisons to the previous reporting period include:

- A reduction in board activity was reported statewide and within each Ecology region compared to the previous reporting period 2012 Report to the Legislature: Water Conservancy Boards <https://fortress.wa.gov/ecy/publications/SummaryPages/1211051.html> .

- A decrease in accepted applications, down from 186 in the 2012 reporting period to 129 in the 2014 report period, while the number of board contacts¹ increased by nearly 21 percent, from 332 to 421 in this 2014 period.
- A 55 percent increase in overall board decisions, up from 83 in the 2012 report period to 150 in the 2014 report period. (Decisions can be rendered on applications that were submitted before the reporting year, depending upon applicant response to requests for more information or other delaying factors.)
- A decrease in the number of decisions withdrawn by boards, from 30 in the 2012 report period to 1 in 2014.
- Two boards (Thurston, Whatcom) had no applications or decisions issued during this reporting period.
- The remaining 15 boards processed 188 applications in 2013, and 130 applications in 2014, for a total of 318 during the reporting period.
- No board decisions were appealed to the Pollution Control Hearings Board (PCHB) in the current reporting period; there were 5 in 2011-2012.

Board Operations

Each board has now acquired several years of operating experience, and some continue to write the Report of Examination (ROE), following careful review of the water right change application. It is now more common for boards to review the ROE completed by a consultant hired by the applicant. Ecology staff is available at every stage to provide technical assistance to the boards, but do not interact with the applicant unless requested by the board.

All board activities are subject to the Open Public Meetings Act, RCW 42.30 and 42.32, and requirements of the Public Records Act, RCW 42.56. Each eligible board member votes to approve or deny the ROE, documenting their rationale, conclusions, and the board's decision.

A board's Record of Decision (ROD) is submitted to Ecology for final review and decision. The public may submit comments during the board's review process, and up to 30 days after Ecology receives the board's final decision. The board or applicant can choose to withdraw the application from Ecology at any time prior to Ecology's final decision. Ecology may approve, approve with modification(s), return it to the board for further review or corrections, or deny the ROD. The applicant has the option to appeal Ecology's final decision to the PCHB.

¹ Pre-application consultations or other queries or contact with a Board or Board Commissioner regarding a potential application.

Qualifications and Training

Board volunteers are appointed to a six-year term, and are required to complete an initial 32-hour ‘Water Law 101’ training. Board members must also acquire eight hours of continuing education annually to remain eligible to vote on water right change applications.

Ecology’s Water Resources Program staff typically presents the 4-day training and many of the continuing education events, and also encourages/approves members’ efforts to obtain the continuing education on their own. The program is currently investigating online training as a way to improve training accessibility and reduce time and travel costs that are incurred by the board members and Ecology staff.

	Reading List from (ECY) attached	5/16/2013	Victoria Leuba (ECY) approved for Jim Gleaton
	Spokane River Forum & Presentation on fish consumption @ Ecology sponsored event	This Year	Ecology approved for Wes McCart
	Washington Finance Officers Association. Fundamentals of Municipal Water: Law, Policy, Financing and Operations	May 16, 2013	WFOA approved for Luke McGuire
Additional comments: Public Outreach: Wes McCart is also a Stevens County Commissioner; he represents the SCWCB at monthly Stevens County Conservation District board meetings and reports on SCWCB activities. The Chairman of the SCWCB tries to meet quarterly with the Stevens County Commissioners Adminstration: The SCWCB filed the 1099-Misc report with the IRS; signed the personal services contract for administrative services for 2013; developed the 2013 budget; developed a draft 2014 budget for presentation to the Stevens County Commissioners; developed the 2013 Annual Plan of Work; reviewed and revised, as necessary, administrative documents; prepared updated handbooks for SCWCB members; prepared the 2013 Legislative Report; and held an election of officers. Financial: SCWCB submitted the Annual Financial Report to the State Auditor; conducted an internal audit of financial records; received a $3,000 grant from Stevens County; reimbursed members and alternates for travel to/from official meetings; and utilized BARS for recording financial transactions. Training: Ecology did not provide 32 hours of initial training for Michael Schwartz, new Commissioner appointed September 25, 2012, which has created a hardship for Mr. Schwartz and SCWCB. Because Ecology failed to provide annual training for Commissions as they had done in the past, it was a hardship for Commissioners to track their training needs, secure other sources of training and to meet Ecology's training dealines.
